DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

PERMANENT CHAIRMAN THOMAS J. WALSH'S ADDRESS.

Platform Adopted—Still Balloting on Thursday, McAdoo, Smith and J. W. Davis Leading.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, in his address as Permanent Chairman of the Democratic National Convention, spoke as follows:

Judge not of my gratitude nor of the depth of my appreciation of the honor you do me by the brevity of my acknowledgment, if I say simply, "I thank you." Both are profound.

I am your servant, called to aid you in the discharge of the grave tasks with which you have been entrusted to expedite the business you have in hand, to see that it proceeds in such orderly fashion as is essential to due deliberation and a fair hearing for every cause. I am powerless without your cooperation to these ends. That it will be given in unstinted measure I entertain no doubt.

The momentous character of this occasion is universally recognized. The eyes of the world are upon us. We are assembled in this great city, the metropolis of our country, as the representatives of one of its historic political parties to select the next President of the United States. True, our choice must be ratified in due form, but guided in our deliberations by the spirit of wisdom invoked in prayer the event is not uncertain. The opportunity is before us. The duty, the responsibility, is ours.

The nation expects, yea, demands, of us a leader who exemplifies the principles of government associated with the name of Thomas Jefferson, a leader whose heart is attuned to the pulsations of those who labor on the farm and in the field, in the mills and workshops, at the forge and in the mines, at the desk and in the household, who heeds the cry of all the people for a larger life, rather than the plea of the few, the favorites of fortune, who are eager to exploit their fellows; a leader who has the vision to divine and the courage to pursue the paths to which national honor points and that lead to national, as distinguished from exceptional, prosperity.

A Tribute to Wilson

Such a leader our party lately gave to the nation to guide its course and direct its energies in the greatest crisis that ever rocked the globe.

By sheer force of his intellectual supremacy among the statesmen of the world he assumed, by common consent, the primacy, and, holding it, gave to the country, in whose name he spoke, a place in the family of nations never before attained. He challenged attention to the lofty ideals of America in a manner never equaled and met with a response so generous as that, for all time her sons will be thrilled at the story of his exposition of them.

In so far as he failed to secure their acceptance as the ruling principles in international relations, his countrymen who derided his efforts and undermined his influence must bear the blame.

Note the bitter fruits of their triumph. Proclaiming that selfishness is the only constant or controlling factor in intercourse between Governments and duplicity ever to be apprehended, the view found ready acceptance that ideals in any governmental affairs are only the vain hope of the visionary.

"Back to normalcy" meant back to the methods and practices of a day that was dead, of a generation ago, when Hanna ruled and Aldrich legislated, when the Senate was a millionaires' club, doing the bidding of the "invisible Government."

In an atmosphere tainted with such mischievous views, Newberry readily aspired to a seat in the upper house of Congress to be achieved by the lavish and corrupt expenditure of his great wealth, and in the general let-down in the moral tone met with a temporary success. Every predatory interest foregathered to restore to power the protagonists of a venal and discarded theory of government, and, having accomplished that end, they or their representatives swarmed about the President-elect and the purloins of the Capitol, each seeking to promote his own individual selfish project or purpose.

It was easy to pass from the idea expressed in "every nation for itself" to the related thought in "every man for himself." This recession to a lower moral standard was not a phenomenon without a historic parallel.

Roosevelt and What Followed.

A little less than a generation ago a President of the United States repeatedly declaimed, in what was by some regarded as intemperate language, against the sordid and corrupt influences that had become manifest in our national life. He did more. He invoked the penalties of the law against malefactors, high and low, and if it be true, as charged, that he occasionally looked leniently on the offenses of his friends, it is equally true that his acts as well as his words contributed materially to a restored respect for the Mosaic command, "Thou shalt not steal," as applicable no less to the affairs of Government than those of private life.

There followed a period when a complacent President tolerated the return of the spirit partially exercised by his predecessor, giving rise to the Ballinger scandal, a symptom of the resurgence of the elements within his party that had used and were determined to use the agencies of the Government within and, wherever safe, without the law, for private gain.

The catastrophe which overtook the Republican Party in consequence of the revolt in its own ranks against the sinister influences which dominated it need not be recounted, but it is significant of the character of their protest that that organization was denounced by one-half of its former adherents as essentially and irretrievably corrupt, and that they signalized their severance from it by singing "Forward, Christian Soldiers."

I say nothing of the period of Democratic ascendancy which followed, further than that after public mondays, in sums the magnitude of which the ordinary mind has and can have no adequate conception except by comparison, had been authorized and spent in the prosecution of the greatest war of all time by those who during that season of storm represented us officially, and investigation after investigation, undertaken by their political opponents, had revealed nothing culpable, the inquiry collapsed under the scorn of the genlemen who, two weeks ago, was accorded by the Republican Party the second honor in its gift.

Pictures "Gallery" of "Mercenaries."

When it is remembered that it was the same elements within it that controlled and wrecked the party in 1912, which retained the supremacy in 1920, over a more or less reunited organization, contemptuous of all aspirations having a spiritual basis, either in national or international affairs, arrogant in victory, it is not surprising that its promises solemnly made in its platform to promote the organization of an association of nations, for the adjustment of international controversies, to supplant the League of Nations with which the name of the greatest American President, save only Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln, is so intimately associated, should be speedily consigned to oblivion.

These things considered, it will not appear so strange either that the new President was speedily surrounded by a group of mercenaries, whose sinister purposes he was, from his kindly nature, loath to suspect, and, for one reason or another, unable to discern.

What a galaxy! Forbes, Fall, Daugherty, Jess Smith, Mannington, Felker, Darden, Kramer, with Roxie Stinson and Gaston B. Means in the background.

Was the appearance of these worthies purely accidental, sporadic in character? If it was not to be apprehended on account of conditions so bitterly denounced by the revolting Republicans in 1912, consider how the leaders of the party to which they belonged have treated them in their delinquencies and villainies.

What clarion voice has been raised from any high official quarter against Forbes, the despoiler of the disabled veteran, or Fall, who bartered away an all-important element of the national defense under circumstances he dare not tell lest he confess criminality?

Assails White House

Stand on Scandals.

In its virile youth the men whose names blazed the pages of the history of the Republican Party did not hesitate to declaim against the corruption that was sapping its vitality. The venality that stained the Administration of General Grant, though it left him untouched, was denounced by none more readily or with greater effect than by William Cullen Bryant, William E. Curtis, Carl Schurz, Lyman Trumbull, Joseph Medill, Charles Francis Adams and John Bigelow, political associates of Abraham Lincoln. They found no extenuation of the crimes that in their day polluted the record of the party they had helped set on foot, in a supposed after-the-war psychology.

Instead of excoriating the unfaithful public servants, of whose misdeeds the uttermost parts of the earth are not uninformed, to the disgrace of the nation as well as of themselves, palliation is attempted in the absurd observation, emanating from the White House, that "men are involved who belong to both political parties"—a charge characterized by one of the few leading Republican papers that have declined to condone the offenses revealed as a "paltry bit of political misrepresentation."

Commenting further on the disclosures, touching the leases of the naval oil reserves, the same journal remarked pertinently that the "matter of real concern is the corrupt procedure of a member of the Cabinet and the connivance of two of his colleagues," and that "it is incontestable that responsibility for the scandal rests square upon the Republican Party."

Says Tariff Checks Farm Relief.

For the harmony thus secured and the prosperity enjoyed by the tariff beneficiaries, the farmers of the Northwest have paid until bankruptcy among them is general.

Touching the abuse heaped upon those through whose efforts the investigations were made effective and the Congress which authorized them, the President of the foremost woman's college in America wrote:

"I am amazed, not at Congress, but at the people, who seem for the first time in history to contemplate graft in high office with resignation."

The distinguished educator must have meant some of the people, for I cannot believe that more than a negligible number regard with un-

True, the towering genius, the rival in intellect of Jefferson, who held the helm in that period of stress and storm, is no more. The stricken statesman rests secure in the reverential regard of his countrymen. But his high ideals, his lofty purposes, his trust in the judgment of the plain people remain our heritage.

Though he saw plainly and pointed unerringly to the evils in the body politic, it is in no sense derogatory to his fame that the legislation, conceived to meet the situation which gave lustre to the Administration, was the work of other more practiced and perhaps practical, if less brilliant minds. The mutations in their ranks have in no wise operated to impair their efficiency as a body or make them less responsive to the heart-throbs of the plain people.

Witness the revenue law of the last session, before referred to. Had it suited the purpose of those who sought at such trouble and expense to secure a popular verdict in favor of the Mellon plan to invite an expression on it as against the plan embodied in the law, the former would have been condemned as emphatically as the price of his produce falling in accordance with world prices, while everything he must buy is held at the war level by the tariff.

Though conditions are most acute in the Northwest, every product that is manufactured is affected. Banks are suspending at the rate of more than a thousand per year, signifying social readjustments of the most far-reaching character. We are officially informed that the net change of population from farm to town during 1923 was over 1,200,000, accelerating a movement in progress in recent decades that had already excited general alarm.

The tremendous reduction in the purchasing power of the farm population is already reflected in increased unemployment in most of the leading industries.

In the face of an impending national calamity the Republican Party is impotent. Held fast by the great monolithic beneficiaries of the tariff, it dare not lower the rates even on those commodities a reduction in the price of which would be of immediate benefit to the farmer, less the whole structure should tumble.

Hoping for another victory by perseverance in its opposition to the only plan yet devised by the nations looking to the outlawry of war, it dare not take a step toward the pacification of Europe, with a view to the restoration of its normal purchasing power, lest it be wrecked by the passions it aroused to accomplish the rejection of the covenant of the League of Nations for no better reason than that it was sponsored by a Democratic President. It has no remedy; it offers no relief from the paralysis that afflicts agriculture, threatening every form of industry.

Moreover, it finds itself plagued with representatives in both houses of Congress, representative of current thought among their constituents, holding views so radically at variance with those of the dominant faction in the party as to preclude the possibility of uniting on any program of legislation. Its frantic effort to rid itself of the embarrassment of these insurgent members is as ludicrous as it will prove futile. They cannot be shaken off. They have the endorsement of their people. No regular or stand-pat Republican could make head against any one of them. They represent a revolt in a region overwhelmingly Republican against the policies of the Republican Party.

Recalls Passage of Tax Bill.

With their aid, the Democratic members of the Congress wrote the revenue act, lately approved in defiance of the recommendation of the President and his Secretary of the Treasury, a chapter in the history of Congressional legislation without, it is believed, a parallel.

They encouraged, promoted and actively aided in the investigations of the executive departments in conjunction with the Democratic members and cooperated with them in securing appropriate action touching the revelations made by the various committees. They revolted against the choice of the majority of their party for the chairmanship of one of the leading committees of the Senate and elevated a Democratic member to that place.

The Republican Party has ceased to be an organization through which the business of the country can be carried on. Now is that the end of the antagonisms within the party.

The President was at odds with the majority wing with which he is supposed to be sympathetic, on the Warid Court, the Pension bill, the Accrued Compensation bill and, to a greater or less extent, on the Immigration bill. Now, to cap the climax, uncomely dissensions rend the party organization charged with the conduct of the campaign about to begin. If these are not the signs of dislocation at least disaster may be read in the formal severance of any alliance which may subsist on the part of the so-called Progressive wing of the party about to duplicate the revolt of 1912 and effect an independent organization.

Upon the record of the Democratic Party through eight years of glorious history from 1913 to 1921 we submit that it should again be entrusted with the direction of our national affairs. There is no blot upon that record. It shines resplendent. No like period in our history is more crowded with great events or has presented problems more profound. It is signalized by the enactment of more legislation for the common good than is recorded in our annals for any other equal number of years.

The exigencies arising from the sudden outbreak of the war in 1914 and the collapse of the world's system of exchange were met in a fashion that defied criticism. When the nation eventually became involved in the sanguinary conflict, its resources in men and material were marshaled in a way that astonished our allies and brought consternation to the ranks of our enemies. The financing of the great enterprise reflected the highest credit upon the party that undertook its direction.

Calls Wilson's Ideals Our Heritage.

True, the towering genius, the rival in intellect of Jefferson, who held the helm in that period of stress and storm, is no more. The stricken statesman rests secure in the reverential regard of his countrymen. But his high ideals, his lofty purposes, his trust in the judgment of the plain people remain our heritage.

Though he saw plainly and pointed unerringly to the evils in the body politic, it is in no sense derogatory to his fame that the legislation, conceived to meet the situation which gave lustre to the Administration, was the work of other more practiced and perhaps practical, if less brilliant minds. The mutations in their ranks have in no wise operated to impair their efficiency as a body or make them less responsive to the heart-throbs of the plain people.

Witness the revenue law of the last session, before referred to. Had it suited the purpose of those who sought at such trouble and expense to secure a popular verdict in favor of the Mellon plan to invite an expression on it as against the plan embodied in the law, the former would have been condemned as emphatically as the price of his produce falling in accordance with world prices, while everything he must buy is held at the war level by the tariff.

The two schemes of tax reduction afford an illuminating answer to the intimation often carried in the inquiry as to the difference between the Republican Party and the Democratic Party. Each accomplished substantially the same reduction. Each released for investment in productive enterprises approximately the same amount of capital. But the plan of the President and his Secretary gave the greatest relief to the few overrich, the Democratic plan to the many of small or moderate means. And this in strict accord with the principle of the income tax that those should pay most who have the most with which to pay.

In the process of the sums as we recede from the war period further reduction of taxation is to be expected. It is an idle boast that five years after the cessation of hostilities a substantial reduction in our annual budget is noticeable.

I know how eager the managers of the campaign for the re-election of President Coolidge are to switch the issues from honest government, the repeal of the tariff of abominations, relief for agriculture and related reforms to the League of Nations. It is not so necessary that we immediately join the League as it is that we abandon foolish antagonism to any world movement, however commendable in itself, merely because it is in some way associated with the League.

We may confidently rely upon general support of a policy of active participation by our Government in any effort that may be made through the League or any other channel to bring about a restoration of normal industrial activity in Europe and to establish a state of actual peace in every case in which it is reasonably safe to do so without entangling ourselves in the quarrels of its constituent nations, or involving us in schemes of national aggrandizement or controversies distinctly political in character.

The honor of our country, the prosperity of our people demand that we return to the ideals of Woodrow Wilson, that we resume the place he won for us—the moral leadership of the world.

Nurses' Home Started.

Ground was broken this week for the foundation for the Nurses' Home at the Annie M. Warner Hospital. There was no ceremony in connection with the breaking of the ground.

The nurses' home will be of brick construction. It will be a two-story building, with a frontage of fifty feet and a depth of forty feet and will be located south of the present hospital at a distance of about 85 feet. Its relation with the hospital will be such that if at any time the directors see fit to connect the two structures with a convalescent ward and sunparlor it will be possible to do so.

The architecture of the building will be simple and unpretentious, but the building will be as complete as it is possible to build it. Everything for the comfort and convenience of the nurses will be found in the new building. Twelve sleeping rooms for nurses will be provided.

Luther I. Sachs, of this place, has the contract for the home and promises to rush work so that building can be occupied in the early fall. Contract price is $18,529.

The New OLIVER Plow for the FORDSON

DEMONSTRATION

WEDNESDAY

JULY 9

AT 10:00 A. M.

On the Farm of

Jacob Taughinbaugh

Hunterstown, Pa.

Here is the opportunity to see the new Oliver No. 7-A at work under actual field conditions.

When you see this plowing, note the quick, sure penetration, the clean, even furrows and the easy manner in which the plow is handled.

Notice the handy controls which allow all adjustments from the tractor seat. See the powerful screw that will raise the bottoms completely out of the ground even with the plow standing still. The power lift is operated by a trip rod rather than a trip rope.

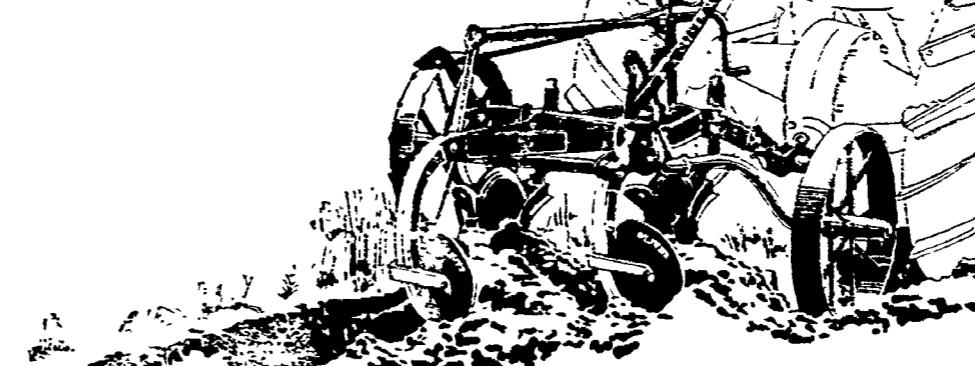

Wheels, properly placed, make light draft and even depth furrow so desirable for a good seed bed. Clearance of the beams permits good plowing in trashy fields.

Perhaps the soil on your farm is different from that plowed at the demonstration. Ask your Ford dealer to show on your own farm just what the new Oliver No. 7-A will do.

Take your neighbors with you to see this new plow.
